The University of Arizona offers international online learners enrolled in the Global Direct Campus individualized attention and support, starting with admission to the University and continuing throughout their enrollment process. A unique and nurturing first-semester support model serves as the cornerstone for all Global Direct students. This includes one-on-one advising, a special community-building Student Success Course, and fun online engagement opportunities with peers from around the world. Our Academic Advisors help onboard new Global Direct students during their first semester and work with them for up to a full year, until such time as a student chooses to transition to in-person studies on our main campus or proceeds with a fully online degree. In the first semester, students take introductory math, English, and general education classes that apply toward any University of Arizona undergraduate degree. The Advisors help students move seamlessly into the best fit degree program, handling the administrative processes of choosing or changing majors or campuses.
