

I am a professor Banking and Finance at Yarmouk University , Irbid, Jordan . I earned my Master's and Ph.D degrees from the University of Glasgow, Scotland, U.K. I have started my teaching career in 1991. Since then I have been involved in teaching undergraduate and post graduate courses in different fields of finance such as Investment, portfolio management, small business finance, financial management and analysis. I have also supervised a number of Master's theses. In addition, I have been involved in research activities and have published a number of research papers in local and international Journals. I have also assumed several administrative posts at Yarmouk University; I was appointed as chairperson for the Department of Banking and Finance, Deans' Assistant and Vice Dean for the faculty of Economics and Administrative Sciences. My teaching experience also extended to regional Universities such as the University of Bahrain, and Prince Sultan University in KSA where I had the privilege to establish and chair a new department in Finance and Marketing. Under the supervision of UNIDO, I have participated in the development of entrepreneurship programs in many Arab countries including Jordan, Syria, Yemen, and Saudi Arabia.
